Lesbian Cowboys Erotic Adventures

Edited by Sacchi Green and Rakelle Valencia

"Cowboy" is a calling, a vocation, not a gender and some of the toughest cowboys aren't boys at all. The life is rough and gritty, as much down to earth as tall in the saddle. The lesbian cowboys in these stories work hard, play hard, and love hard, in the old West, new West, or anywhere in the world. Above all, they ride hard on a horse or a woman. "Cowboy" is also a legend, an attitude, and a state of mind. These women do the work and walk the walk. They know what they want and take it, and give back as good as they get. For all their similarities each is a distinct individual, with stories that vary from profoundly moving to gripping to edgy as shiny spurs. The settings cover a wide range, as well, from Australia to New England, to the Great Plains and the Rockies and span the decades from the romance of the Old West to today's torrid tales.

Contributors Radclyffe and Jove Bell depict today's fearless femme rodeo riders, holding their own against the men in the limelight, and holding another women close at night. Cheyenne Blue shows he conflict between traditional cattle ranching and the new environmentalism in the wilds of Australia while Delilah Devlin's "Hired Hand" is every inch a woman and more than a match for any man. Sexy, steamy, and crackling with erotic energy, these stories are sure to rivet.
